DON'T DELAY

It is "Putting Off Till Some Other Day" that Causes so Many Sudden Deaths.

Be sure you need a medicine before you take it, but having once found out that you need it, lose no time in getting the best. If it's for the kidneys, liver, bladder or blood, rheumatism, dyspepsia, chronic constipation, or the weakness peculiar to women, the best is Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and a very simple way to find out if you need it, is to put some urine in a glass tumbler and let it stand 24 hours; if it has a sediment or a milky or cloudy appearance; if it isropy or stringy, pale or discolored, you do not need a physician to tell you that your kidneys and bladder are badly affected.

The Rev. Theodore Hunter, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, Greensburg, Ky., writes us the following:

"It gives me much pleasure to state that I have received great benefit from the use of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. Some time ago I had a severe attack of kidney trouble, but a few bottles of 'Favorite Remedy' have entirely removed the malady."

"Favorite Remedy" speedily cures such dangerous symptoms as pain in the back, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night, burning scalding pain in passing water, the staining of linen by your urine and all the unpleasant and dangerous effects produced on the system by the use of whiskey and beer.

All druggists sell Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy in the New 50 Cent Size and the regular $1.00 Size. Write for a free trial, 3-cent sample bottle—enough for one trial, free by mail.

Man's Aspirations and Limitations.

Written for the Advertiser.

We have studied Nature's lessons From youth to man's estate, Grown gray in meditations In fasting and in state.

We have formed some vague conclusions And deemed them quite discreet, But time would bring all chances And prove them incomplete.

We will first consider Adam, The first in Nature's call, Who sought to climb the summit And caused that dreadful fall.

We have studied well conditions While groping in the dark, We have wondered, and we've wondered Over Noah and his Ark.

The ocean sea and fishes Where ships are wont to sail, O'er startled depths of billows With Jonah and the whale.

We've assumed some grand proportions, Imagination planned; We've built some gaudy castles On which to make our stand, But somehow castles tumble, And men are apt to fall, And shrink in their proportions, Or showing mighty fall.

We have joined associations To foster lofty schemes, To brush to conceal his form, But these were naught but dreams.

We have entered to the hero, We have joined the Sons-of-Guns, To prove that we are blue-blooded, To these, the humbler ones.

In looking up our lineage, We forced ourselves to think That breaks occur along the lines Pointing out the blue link.

So in the dim and misty haze, Man stoned and cast the die; Hence what has been will be again— There's hope for you, GILBERT TITTON.

The intellect is finite, but the affections Are infinite and cannot be exhausted. Longfellow.

For He who hath made love Hath made himself infinite, And even when he is away, The world is full of his life. Love still abides. The world is full of his life. Love still abides.

What love like mother love? Can any find a purer and more God-like? Nay! Mother-love will watch and pray, And tenderly guide the steps of her child, Pointing out the thorns that might offend, Pointing out the thorns that might offend.

And when at last this tenement of clay Falls to the earth, On to a fairer shore, To join the souls laboring for on earth, And the heart that sad scar that earth had left.

My first letter was rather sploidy, it is true, but I hope it has been less strong. It would not have brought forth the reply which it did. I appreciate the fact that cooperation is the strong point.

Suppose seventy-five of the absent ones were instantly in bringing to Norway from one to four strangers, apiece, say an average of two, making a total of one hundred and fifty. Of course some of these people probably would come only once, while others would come again and again.

The Advertiser, which has always been so anxious to promote the good interest of the town, would without doubt devote a conspicuous section in bright colors to this subject. I appreciate the chief drawback will be that each will think the other might be just the point. The few people whom I expect to interest in your vicinity will not make the town wealthy, but every little helps. I predict a good business if the people get interested in it. I am not nearly run down, but I am afraid your new office chair is getting hard so will close. Respectfully yours, MARK P. SMITH.

The Gentle Art.
It is a beautiful sight and a seductive example of the gentle art of angling to watch the accomplished fisherman drop his bait, and the fish rise to the surface of a trout stream and float them deftly and tenderly over or past the spot where presumably some trout lurks.

The skill with which the angler avails himself of all the possibilities of the fish, to conceal his form or shadow from the shy and suspicious trout he would entice; his close attention and steady silence; his ready acceptance of the passing breeze's mood that would wait his feathery hook as with loving care to the very spot where the fish fall, or his defiance of it; the ethereal lightness of the feather-tipped barb; the graceful curve of the plant rod, and the soft, musical murmur of the slither line as it speeds through the air; the royal beauty and knightly combativeness of the fish that is hooked—all these combine to make trout fishing the very poetry of angling.

But the fulness of it cannot be enjoyed without the days of June. Then the year has burst into full and lush life. The weather is soft and gracious. Earth and air and sky are attuned to universal gladness. The streams sing for joy. The meadows are draughts of sweetness. The trees and shrubs greetings and beckon one to a joyment.

June is the time to think tenderly and lovingly of the brook among the hills; of the pools where gliding rapids grow calm and alders cluster and elms and maples throw their dancing shadows; and of the savory, luscious, beautiful creatures that lie in wait beneath the ripples and the foam and the darkening eddies.

Pity the man into whose later life there comes no memory of a day such as this—an early June morning, the road through shadowing woods, past fragrant fields, by coolly stretched; he eagerly afoot upon it, with rod and line and reel.

Loss of Appetite.
A person that has lost appetite has lost something besides—vitality, vigor, tone. The way to recover appetite and all that goes with it is to use Hot's Food. It strengthens the stomach, perfects digestion and builds up the system. It is a food that is good for all.

Marriage Omens.
Rhymes that jingle to the tinkling of Wedding Bells.

To every woman the subject of marriage is interesting, and, therefore, no apology is needed for recalling some quaint sayings and customs relating to it. When a maiden is asked by her lover to name the happy day which will make her his own, she usually replies, "I will be a suitable time. She avoids the second of Lent, for if married in Lent you are sure to repent; and if she be prudent she remembers the following ancient adage:

Monday for wealth, Tuesday for health, Wednesday the best day of all; Thursday for riches, Friday for losses, Saturday as luck at all.

There are countless sayings about marriage which have come down from long ago, many of which still find favor as "Marry in haste and repent at leisure," and though it is not so well known, "Great joy shown in a bride's face presages misfortune." In the latter saying, praise of that old-fashioned virtue, reserve is evidently intended.

"Happy is the bride that the sun shines on," is a saying often quoted by anxious old folks, and the weather on the morning of the day when some fair friend of theirs is to be married.

"Thrice a bridesmaid never a bride," is remembered by many a fair damsel, and who is again reminded to attend a bride to the altar, but modern girls are so minded enough to defy fate, and to undertake the office of a bridesmaid as often as may be desired.

Married in white, you have chosen all right; Married in black you will wish yourself dead; Married in red, you will wish yourself dead; Married in green, you will wish yourself dead; Married in blue, he will always be true; Married in yellow, he will live in a whirl; Married in purple, he will be a fool; Married in brown, you will live out of town; Married in pink, he will be a snail.

Speaking of marriage, reminds one of the bridal orange blossoms, and of the custom of wearing it originated. The following is an ancient Moorish tradition: A Moorish king sent his daughter to marry a prince of a neighboring kingdom. The king's daughter was a beautiful girl, and she was loved by the prince. The king's daughter was a beautiful girl, and she was loved by the prince.

At last, one day, a spray of the glossy leaves and beautiful blossoms was accidentally broken off, and the gardener gave it to his pretty daughter, who was betrothed to a poor man. The girl had loved the prince, and she was loved by the prince. The king's daughter was a beautiful girl, and she was loved by the prince.

"Before I would marry a man to reform him, I would sooner marry an ape and wait for him to develop," said a minister in addressing the graduating class of a female college. The class consisted of young women from places throughout the South, daughters of wealthy stock raisers and planters. The preacher admonished them not to act hastily in selecting a husband. He declared that there would be fewer tears shed after the union if the step was taken after due consideration.

New Jerusalem Celebrates
Its 25th Anniversary.

The Church of the New Jerusalem in Fryeburg celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of its organization on Tuesday evening, June 3, by a social gathering of the society and its friends in the New Church hall. This same date also marked the twenty-second anniversary of the marriage of the pastor and his wife, Rev. and Mrs. B. N. Stone.

The program consisted of the Lord's prayer repeated by the congregation, the reading of the Psalm 122, and also the reading of the early records of the church, and an address of welcome by Rev. Mr. Stone; singing of "Auld Lang Syne" by the congregation; instrumental music by Mrs. B. T. Newman, Winnie Wyman and Mrs. Hale Jacobs of Malden, Mass.; reading of "The Dedication Hymn" and a poem entitled "The Planting of the Church," by Mary E. Warren.

These poems were written by Ruth Atwood, who was much interested in the formation of the society and some years ago went to the other world. Addresses of encouragement and good will were made by A. F. Lewis, John L. Osgood and William Gordon.

Rev. Mr. Stone announced that he had officiated at 575 funerals and solemnized 209 marriages since he had been in Fryeburg. He was for three years the pastor of the Congregational church before the founding of the Church of the New Jerusalem.

A. F. Lewis, in behalf of his "New Church Friends," presented to Rev. and Mrs. Stone a sum of money as a token of their regard and in honor of their anniversary. Although taken by surprise Rev. Mr. Stone made a worthy response.

Interesting letters were read by Mrs. Samuel Gordon from Annie Page of Danvers, Mass., Mrs. Sarah J. Hutchins of Malden, Mass., and Hon. William Warren Towle of Boston.

The exercises closed with a tribute to the memory of Col. A. B. Gibson and his wife. The memorial bell was presented to the church on Easter Sunday, 1876, by Col. Gibson. The choir, by request, sang to the tune "Nearer My God to Thee," the Easter memorial hymn, written by Mary E. Warren, and which was sung when the bell was dedicated sixteen years ago.

Light refreshments and genial conversation occupied the remainder of the time.

On Sunday morning, June 8th, Rev. Mr. Stone preached a sermon commemorative of his long pastorate over this church. The subject was "The Doctrine and Life for which the Fryeburg New Church Society stands in the Community."

For 30 Years a Mainstay.
Wallace Staples of Biddeford, Me., writes: "As to the True 'L. F.' Atwood's, I would say of this remedy, we have used it for 30 years in our family. My wife has used it since childhood for indigestion, heartburn and similar troubles. We find it good at all seasons."

Extracts from a Lecture.
"Ladies, surrender your arms," was the stern command heard one afternoon recently at the Ladies' club.

"Let go the back!" "Let the elbows hang loose!" were further edicts pronounced.

"Stop holding on to your hands," ordered the lecturer. Each woman looked guiltily at a spotless, white-gloved hand, then at the lecturer, and then at her own hands tight. In other words, she's keeping every muscle tense. Let them go! Let them hang loosely by the side. There! That's better already. Now you're less in danger of nervous prostration."

Having abolished the fatal habit of holding one's own hands, the lecturer continued to preach her gospel of elasticity.

"Let the elbows hang loose. Surrender the elbows. You look better and prettier when you do. Don't you know that holding the elbows stiffly means the surrender of the jaw and tongue? A rasping voice is the sign of a narrow mind, and is usually accompanied by stiffened joints. When once the jaw is surrendered, and all the muscles are relaxed, the voice will be kinder and stronger since the surrender of the jaw."

"Finally, teach the mind to become receptive and elastic. Elasticity of body depends upon untrained mind. An awkward body. Excesses of the mind mean corresponding bodily excesses. What we think and feel is photographed with perfect exactness in our bearing, face and voice. The highest power we can possess is mastery of self, whose emblem is repose."

John F. Moore, international field secretary of the railroad department of the Y. M. C. A. work has been over the Grand Trunk from Portland to Montreal with the view of establishing branches of the work.

A novel and ingenious scarecrow is that gotten up by a Sweden farmer. The contrivance consists of a cowbell placed upon a long pole, to which there is a string attached leading to the house. Underneath this bell is a barrel; when a crow is seen in the field all that is necessary is to pull the string. The bell rings and out of the barrel underneath pops a jack-in-the-box. It is unnecessary to say that the bird disappears.

While Dr. W. B. Haskell was driving with Wm. Baxter, Tuesday, a partridge flew from the woods, alighting upon the back of his horse. The animal was frightened and began to run. EAST STONEHAM.

Fire.
V. H. Littlefield's saw mill was discovered to be on fire about 2.30 o'clock last Tuesday morning, June 5. The flames had made such progress when first discovered as to make it impossible to save anything inside. Machinery, belting, tools and slews which had been stored in the mill, also harnesses and other articles, were a total loss. Besides these about 40 thousands of shingles, laths, and some lumber were burnt. By the efforts of the owner and citizens who arrived, the shingles and lumber which could be removed were saved.

There was no insurance on the mill or contents, and the loss falls heavily on Mr. Littlefield who is just commencing in business. I am unable to give a correct estimate of the amount lost, but judge it last amount to all dry spell $1,000. During the recent dry spell some of his timber was injured by forest fires, and now this last calamity has come while there remains quite a lot of cut timber to be sawed out this season.

We are very sorry for the young man's loss and hope he may be encouraged to try again.

A bed of sawdust and other debris, which had been accumulating about the burnt mill, remained on fire and was extinguished with some difficulty. Those among us who are nervous and "skerry" were very much rejoiced when the danger seemed to be passed, and the bountiful rain of Sunday wet things in good shape.

Mrs. Ida Evans is expected daily.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Fox have moved into their new home.

Pedlar Littlefield has been absent from home, the past week.

David Brown has seemed to be failing of late and is not able to leave home except to ride out.

The Sunday school scholars and the King's Daughters held a picnic up near Lower Stone pond, last Saturday.

Hiawatha Lodge, K. of P., held their Memorial services, Sunday afternoon. The rain fell in torrents during part of the afternoon, and then cleared off cool and windy.

Mrs. John Littlefield, who has been visiting relatives here, has returned to Bryant's Pond in company with her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Fannie Littlefield. During her visit here Mrs. L.'s health improved in some degree, but she is yet a feeble woman, needing rest and tender care.

As Victor Mason was leading a cow one evening last week on the Albany road some wild animal, supposed to have been a loup-cervier, made a hideous noise and fled before him.

We would not be surprised if there were wild animals in that vicinity, driven from their former haunts by the forest fires which have ravaged this season.

Our former townsman and neighbor, Joseph Ricker, who recently passed away at North Waterford, will be long remembered by the older people of this community. Mr. Ricker was an industrious and hard working man, but for the past two years has not been able to do any work, and has been tenderly cared for by his faithful daughter, Emma Ricker. Mr. Ricker was a member of Crescent Lodge, I. O. O. F., which he joined many years ago. His remains were taken to New Hampshire and interred in the lot beside his first wife.

Maine-Raised Horses and Oxen.

We have gone into the fields at sunrise and moved until noon and know something about it. The hay was raked with a hand rake and after it was made we hauled it in with a pair of oxen that were raised on the farm. We raised all they had to eat and there were thousands of oxen in the State of Maine where there are but very few at the present time.

I claim that all the work on a farm,
with the exception of moving or raking,
some furrowing or cultivating, can be done with oxen, to-day, better than with the average Western horse, which has to be given twice the amount of grain that the oxen have. Then, where are you getting grain? "Oh, we get the grain where we get the horses." They are first put up for stall feed, sometimes for a year, and to fit them for our eastern market, not harnessed properly for the whole time. You know how they look after being worked six months and fed twice the grain Maine horses get. Also you know that one pair of Maine blockymade horses that will not weigh more than 2,000 or 2,200 pounds will road water, go further, cost less to keep and live
years longer as useful servants to man.
What do you think of an investment that will cost you 50 per cent. in one year?
Try a pair of Western horses this spring
that will cost you about $400, work them one year, then sell them at public auction to the highest bidder and it will not take a mathematician to find out how you stand.

Now I can almost hear someone say "I have some wood and lumber to haul to market." Most any one can drive a pair or four oxen as far in a day with a load
as he can the average Western horse, unless he kills the horses. There used to be plenty of oxen for sale. One could almost always buy them in the fall to do the work and fit them for the spring
market, also get an advance on them.
I want to ask you older farmers if there was ever a prettier sight than four or six lusty, white-faced oxen on the road? If they get in a hole and injure themselves for usefulness, then they are all right for the market. How is it with the team horse? He is a dead loss.

Now I like a good horse. He is one of the best gifts to man. There are lots of good horses in New England, as good as any in the world; but unless we look after the horses they will soon be where our oxen are.

I believe we have learned a good lesson in the past few years in breeding these little trotters with a pedigree as long as the revised statutes. They cost just as much to raise as others that will be of some use or sell for twice as much.
Now, as I have heard of a man saying he had observed that June, July and August were the three best months in the year for corn, so springtime is the best time of year to plant all kinds of crops, in this part of the State, at least. We can and should raise our own horses and have a good supply for those who have long pocketbooks.

Every man who has a good Morgan mare or one of light pattern, breed her
this spring to a French coach horse;
then, if no accident happens to the colt,
you will have a good farm or business
horse that will beat any western horse
"top of the earth." Try this, this spring, and take as good care of them as you would some little racing machine, and see the difference.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors promoted it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure it nomenclature, pronounced it incurable.
Science has proved catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure.

Cobb-Heard.
The home of Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn
B. Heard on Summer Hill was the scene of a happy gathering, Wednesday evening, May 21, when their daughter, Stella Jane, was united in marriage to James Bradley Cobb of Summer.
The parlor was prettily decorated with evergreens and cut flowers. Mrs. Henry Cobb played the wedding march while the couple took their place beneath a bower of apple blossoms, where the ceremony was performed by Rev. P. E.
Miller of Cumberland Centre.
The bride was very prettily attired in white muslin with dainty lace trimmings.
The maid of honor was Emma A. Heard and the best man, Albert E. Cobb, sister and brother of the bride, groom.
After the ceremony cake and ice cream
were served, after which the happy couple departed for their new home
amid a shower of rice.

Mr. and Mrs. Cobb have a host of friends who wish them great prosperity and happiness, as was shown by the presents they received. Among the guests from out of town were Elden Cobb of Cambridge, Mass., Mr. and Mrs.
Harry Burdett and two sons, Tommy and Howard, of Turner and Mrs. Dennis Parlin of Portland.

A few invited friends were present. The young couple looked very pretty. The bride was prettily dressed. For flowers she wore tea roses and maidenhair ferns.
The groom wore a suit of dark blue.
A bountiful treat of ice cream and cake and cigars was served. At four, the friends took their departure, wishing the wedded pair many good wishes and voting they had spent a very pleasant af-

and useful.

Strawberry Shortcake.
The month must not go by without a frequent serving of this delectable dish.
so satisfactory when rightly made, and so disappointing as frequently served.
Whole berries are delicious when served as berries pure and simple; in fact there is no better way of serving this most delicious of our summer fruits than the simple one of the long stemmed berries rolled in powdered sugar as eaten, but a hot shortcake—a cold shortcake is not to be considered for a moment—it is necessary that there be a quantity of delicious fruit syrup to permeate the rich crust of the cake, and this cannot be secured with the whole berries and whipped cream. The berries must be sweetened and mashed and stand long enough to dissolve the sugar.

Follow any favorite formula for the dough. A simple one is as follows:
One pint of flour, one-half teaspoon of baking powder mixed well; rub in one rounded tablespoon each of lard and butter; add one well beaten egg mixed with one cup of milk. Mix all together to a soft dough, toss out on a floured board, knead until smooth, divide in two parts, roll each to fit a round tin, and bake about twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Or way which we prefer is this:
Roll the dough half an inch thick, cut with a large cutter and bake like large biscuits. When done, tear them apart, spread with butter and put together again. Then serve at once, and as they are served for a picnic and cover each half with the prepared berries.

Children's Corner.

Bethel, Me., June 2, 1902.
DEAR EDITOR.—This has been a pleasant day. We have about seventy chickens, two calves, two cows, two pigs and a horse. We went to East Bethel, and I spoke a piece. The teacher had there exercises for the day, but my teacher didn't. I had a good time at East Bethel. I will send my recitation for Decoration day.

A Memorial Day Poem.
We call our heroes dead, but are they so
When in our hearts illumined their faces glow?
Their dear and many forms live in our eyes
As beings of life that never dies.

In wrapt communion of the silent night
When Nature's shades enhance the spirit's
light,
How very near and dear to us they seem,
Nor can we think their presence all a dream.
Beside the soldier's soul-inspiring grave
The best of Heaven for him in prayer we crave,
And musing on his noble life and death
Take in their lesson with each sighing breath.

We do not ask what rank or grade he bore,
Nor what peculiar uniform he wore.
He was a soldier brave and he is dead,
And tears of love and pride for him we shed.
As bullets sound and cannons roar we sing
The gifts of early summer-time we bring
To tell for us above their honored graves
How sweet the memory of fallen braves!

As Nature's tears enshrine are lovely flowers,
So every petal is a tear of ours
That dropt upon a soldier's lowly tomb
Shall spring to life in never-ending bloom.
FLORENCE ELLEN KIMBALL.

Jack-in-the-Pulpit.
Jack-in-the-Pulpit
Preaches to-day
Under the green trees,
Just over the way.

Squirrel and song-sparrow,
High on their perch,
Hear the sweet lily-bells
Singing to church.

Come, hear what his reverence
Rises to say,
In his low, painted pulpit,
This calm Sabbath day.

Fair is the canopy
In which he sits,
Penciled by Nature's hand
Black, brown and green.

Green is his surplice,
Green are his bands;
In his queer little pulpit
The little priest stands.

In black and gold velvet
So gorgeous to see,
Combs, with his low voice,
The chorister bee.

Green fingers playing
Usen on wind-lyres,
Low singing-birds' voices—
These are his choir.

The violets are deacons;
In dew they sit,
That the cups that they carry
Are purple with wit.

The columbine braves
As sentinels stand
On the look-out, with all their Red trumpets in hand.

Meek-faced anemones,
Drooping and sad;
Great yellow violets,
Smiling out glad;

Buttercups' faces,
Beaming and bright;
Clovers with bonnets—
Some red and some white;

Do they not all seem to say,
Half clasped in prayer;
Dandelions, proud of
The field to their hair,

Innocent children,
Guileless and frail,
Meek little faces
Upturned and pale.

Wild-wood geraniums,
All their best Languidly leaning
In purple gauze dressed—
All are assembled
In this sweet Sabbath day,
To hear what the priest
In his pulpit will say.

Fifteen Millions a Week.
How Maine Trees Are Turned into United States Postal Cards at Rumford Falls.

The entire United States is dependent for its supply of postal cards upon Rum-ford Falls. From this Maine town are shipped on an average 15,000,000 postal cards each week, says an exchange.
And every card, from the time when it was one of the sturdy trees in the country of the pointed fir until it is a mailing card ready for messages of life or death, of business or pleasure, of sorrow
or joy, is entirely a Maine product.
A staunch monarch of the forest is leveled, and coming from up-Androsog-gin is chemically transformed at the Oxford mill. That yellow pulp, looking so like the last of a rich churning, and filling the big digesters, is the body in solution of the postal card. Hero in solution are all the cards that shall later be used to herald the commercial traveler's appearance, or to carry messages of busy folks, who have no secrets to write their friends.

The wood pulp is flowed out on a screen of such fine mesh that the paper is long in gathering and the result of a more than ordinary thorough shaking is a firm, smooth card of the familiar cream
yellow, free from all qualities of texture, and free from all flakes of shadow when held to the light.

In the big, clean, finishing room of the Oxford mills, where the floor is littered with a delicious clutter of elegant book paper, silk or more, and the great load of women, busy and happy, smoothing the great sheets of book and postal stock into piles. The least defect in the surface is detected at once by their super-sensitive fingers-tips, and sheet after sheet is rejected for a blemish invisible save to touch.

Great trunks convey the postal paper to the printing establishment. Each sheet of stock fed into the printing press is registered automatically, so that an exact tally can be kept of all the cards printed. The two presses have a united capacity of 8,000,000 cards daily.

From Rumford Falls, which is the agency, shipments are made to the sub-agencies, which are Washington, D. C., Cincinnati, O., St. Louis, Mo., and Troy, N. Y. All smaller offices in the United States must make requisition to those sub-agencies for cards, unless they are in the list of cities whose business is so extensive in postal as to require carload shipments. These, by the way, are Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Buffalo, Kansas City, Brooklyn, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, San Francisco, Boston and New York. The average amount of messages written on postal cards in these cities is such that two car loads a month are required,
and New York averages larger.

It is almost haying time and if you are to have a new McCormick mower it is time you ordered it and of course you'll want one of these McCormick Knife Grinders. They are the kind that please the customer, and don't forget that WITT sells them—that is, the grinders, not the customers, with some of the grinders that are offered for sale an agent can sell both the machine and the customer. But it is not so with any of the McCormick machines of any kind. They are sure to give satisfaction. One agent in Maine sold 110 of these grinders last year, he couldn't have made such a record if the machine was not liked. Don't forget now, to order your machines, mowers or rakes very soon so as to have them ready for the bountiful hay crop that is growing.

Republican County Convention.

The following from one who is on the inside of Republican politics in this county, relating to the convention to be held next week, will be of interest to our readers:

"The County Committee, which by the way is the best we ever had, has arranged all the preliminaries for the convention on Wednesday of next week. Hon. John S. Harlow of Dixfield will preside. It is reported that a speaker of note will be present to address the convention, but Hon. John P. Swasey of Canton will also speak. He has performed this service for the last half dozen or more conventions, and this part of the proceedings cannot be dispensed with.

The proceedings will be harmonious and enthusiastic. There will be but one contest, and this apparently not very sharp. As the Bethel caucus decided in favor of Hon. John M. Philbrook the present chairman of the board of county commissioners, there will be but one candidate for Senator. Mr. Philbrook's name will be presented by Henry H. Hastings, esq., chairman of the Bethel delegation who so ably managed Mr. Philbrook's campaign in his own town, and he will be nominated by acclamation.

For Clerk of the Courts, the present incumbent, Charles F. Whitman of your town, will be re-nominated, as will also George M. Atwood of Rumford, County Treasurer. J. Hastings Bean of Paris and Ekeley Ballard of Fryeburg for the Registers of Deeds and Ellery C. Park of Bethel for County Attorney.

The fact is as we say, that we never had a clearer set of county officials than now. The business is kept right up to date and is well cared for.

For County Commissioner there are three candidates, and for this official there will be a contest. Three candidates are in the field and all are good men. E. P. Faunce of Oxford, E. W. Penley of Greenwood and W. H. Eastman of Sumner. By common consent the board as now constituted is usually made up from the different sections of the county. One is taken from the line of the Grand Trunk R. R., one from the section through which the Rumford Falls R. R. is located, and the other from the west. As Mr. Taylor, the third member of the board, is located on the same road, Mr. Eastman's candidacy is handicapped. At one time it looked as if the chances were favorable to Mr. Penley who is thought so well of in that Democratic town of Greenwood that he is elected year after year as chairman of the board of selectmen. Ed is a mighty good fellow and everybody likes him. I think, however, that Faunce stands the best sight to win for this reason. You may recall that when three of the four big towns—Paris, Norway, Rumford and Bethel—are for any candidate, he gets the nomination. When they are equally divided it's a fight to the finish. The interest in three of these towns has been till recently all over the county question and no attention has been paid to anything else. The result is that the delegates from Paris, Norway and probably Bethel are divided between Penley and Faunce, the latter's friends claiming a majority each. Rumford, on the other hand has known from the start what it wanted from Senator down, and its action will be decisive. The delegates are solid for Faunce, so you can see as well as I what the indications point to.

On sheriff, the nomination will go to the west, which is entitled to it. Three candidates have been talked of but for several weeks past there has been no talk of any more about any one but the big deputy from Hiram, Edgar L. Flint. Rumford's six delegates, with such decided men as Fred A. Porter and H. C. Dutton are enthusiastic for Flint. The other three large towns are also for Flint and that he will be nominated is quite beyond doubt. Besides he is a deputy of Sam Pearson's in Cumberland County, and his nomination will emphasize Oxford County's stand against Rumford and its sheriff made law.

There will be much eloquence in the convention. Of those who will present different candidates names may be mentioned Hon. James S. Wright, H. H. Hastings, A. E. Stearns, C. P. Barnes and H. C. Dutton."

As we go to press, we learn on reliable authority that W. H. Eastman will not permit his name to be presented to the convention for county commissioner.
